Armando Falcon

Armando Falcon is CEO of Falcon Capital Advisors LLC, a management consulting firm based in Washington, DC. Falcon Capital Advisors provides strategic advice and technical assistance to financial services companies, the mortgage industry, and government agencies on matters involving process reengineering, project management, regulatory compliance. and data analytics. Falcon Capital Advisors is known to be on the cutting edge of market developments, including the digital transformation of the mortgage market, and the growing role of digital currencies in the financial system.

He previously served as the Director of the Office of Federal Housing Enterprise Oversight (OFHEO) from 1999 – 2005. As the Presidentially appointed and Senate confirmed Director of the agency, he served as the chief regulator for Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac and played a key role in overseeing the U.S. secondary mortgage market and the stability of the U.S. housing finance system.

Before his appointment as the Director of OFHEO, Mr. Falcon served as the General Counsel for the Committee on Banking and Financial Services of the U.S. House of Representatives. Over that eight-year period, he was responsible for advising the Committee on financial regulatory issues and he played a key role in drafting major legislation.

Mr. Falcon currently serves on several corporate and government boards. He earned a Bachelor of Arts degree from St. Mary's University, a Master in Public Policy degree from Harvard University, and a law degree from the University of Texas.